

Phenobarbital Test

1. Blood is to be drawn before your dog receives his or her medication. If you give the medication in the early morning, then bring your pet first thing to have a technician draw the blood; then you may give the medication.
2. Please do not feed your dog until after the blood has been drawn. Samples can be too fatty if the blood is taken too soon after a meal, and this may interfere with the test results. If this happens, then a new blood sample must be submitted, so please avoid this hassle by not feeding the first time.
